

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method for controlling a heating and air conditioning system equipped with actuators, preferably vents, whereby interior conditions are detected by an interior sensing system, at least the seat occupancy with occupants is automatically recognized by an object recognition system on the basis of the data supplied by the interior sensing system, and an optimized adjustment of the heating and air conditioning system to the seat occupancy is automatically performed as a function of the seat occupancy.